To say we've been busy this year is an understatement of the hard work and effort across the association. First, a big thank you to the executive committee, board members, staff, and local associations across the province for your contributions to this work.

We are approximately half way into our strategic plan set in August 2017. At that time, we renewed our vision and set some ambitious goals for all of our departments. The core of this plan is to increase membership value in all that we do.

Relationships and partnerships are key drivers of our industry. We can't build homes without government or other industry sectors. In 2018, we continued to strengthen our relationships with government and provide input directly on issues. This is both within the political realm and our bureaucratic leaders. It has to be a symbiotic relationship in order to get things done for our industry and for homeowners, and our work truly matters.

This year, we funded costing studies for our local associations that were designed by their members. They were used in our local areas successfully for productive conversations on the Step Code and other energy-efficiency code changes. We also work with CHBA National where possible to build on existing research we have available. Initiating unique and tangible research is one of the single most important ways we can invest back into the association and leverage our resources.

A final example, one of many others, is greater collaboration with our nine local associations. We are lucky to be a three-tiered association and we need to work closely. There are many opportunities that don’t fall solely within the local, provincial, or national realm.

A good example of this was our kickoff event at the National Conference held earlier this year in Victoria. As the host province, this was our opportunity to lead with this new initiative and leverage our partnerships nationally and locally with CHBA Vancouver Island. Based on the packed room, we think it was a big success! This is a trend that I would like to see us expand on into 2019.

Among everything else, I was privileged to be able to attend awards ceremonies, golf tournaments, dinner meetings and events by our local membership. I have been able to see why member volunteers matter from many different perspectives throughout my time on the board and as the president. Thank you for the opportunity.

“We are lucky to be a three-tiered association and we need to work closely. There are many opportunities that don’t fall solely within the local, provincial, or national realm.”

CHBA BC President 2018-19
Message
From the CEO

If there’s a theme evident throughout the activities and achievements of CHBA BC in 2018, it was the year full of many firsts.

For advocacy, 2018 was the first full year with the NDP government, and their first official B.C. Budget in February. After the budget announcement, we immediately raised our opposition with the Ministry of Finance about the controversial Speculation Tax and its unintended consequences. CHBA BC fought vigorously against the tax, and simultaneously provided data and rationale to show why the tax could have impacted land for development, and that land should be excluded if it went ahead. We were pleased to see a land under development exemption was created for the final legislation, saving builders, the industry, and home buyers millions of dollars in taxes.

We also held our first Day at the BC Legislature in November – a key priority identified in our 2017-20 Strategic Plan. Planning for this undertaking began early in the year and we successfully built a model to follow for the future using our experiences from the CHBA National Day on the Hill in Ottawa. We were pleased to have 62 MLAs attend our event either at a meeting or a reception, which is 70% of all MLAs. The full day of training prior to the start and a follow-up debrief session were key to ensure we met our objectives, which by all accounts was a tremendous success. Very quickly we have turned our attention to 2019 and how we continue to grow our ever-evolving advocacy program.

With a new CleanBC strategy launched last year by the provincial government, and a renewed focus on energy-efficiency in place, the importance of our energy programs and technical research will continue to be at the forefront of our activities. As a trusted Service Organization among many municipalities, we are in a position of leadership on this topic with a focus on industry innovation and affordability.

We continue to diversify our course offerings and grow our education department, including a review of all our class materials and course content. In November, we held our first Core Competency Update course for licensed builders, which is an opportunity to keep abreast of the changes related to all seven (7) BC Housing core competency subjects in one day. We also created a new online Renovation Fundamentals course that will launch in 2019.

Lastly, we’ve developed new approaches for our marketing and communications. We created targeted media op-eds for advocacy issues as well as launched our first targeted digital campaigns connecting CHBA BC information to consumers for Reno Month. We completed new videos that highlight our awards and benefits of membership that help to get the message out on our activities. With a new CHBA BC website coming in 2019, we look forward to including new features and content to help raise awareness of CHBA BC with potential members and the public.

We always remain focused on membership value and the core services we continue to provide year after year.

I want to thank our dedicated team of professional staff, Matt McCurrach for the time and advice he has provided during his term as president, members of the executive committee, board of directors, and volunteers who contribute their time to help address key issues and strategic objectives. We have a great team in place and look forward to the challenges ahead.

Treasurer’s Report

I am delighted to report to you on the financial wellbeing of the association for the year 2017-2018. Our auditors, Wolrige Mahon Collins Barrow LLP, have provided a report of our accounts which represent the financial position of the association for the financial year, in accordance with generally accepted accounting and audit practices.

I am pleased to report that in the last twelve months the association has maintained its strong financial position due to the growing support of our key membership activities, including education, energy programs and annual events like the Georgie Awards.

My sincerest congratulations to Neil Moody and his team for their fiscally responsible stewardship of the day to day financials this past year. Each month, the Executive Committee receives a comprehensive financial snapshot from Eldon Guenther and his team at Eccounting. These updates continue to demonstrate that CHBA BC is managing within budget and expectations, while mitigating adverse financial risks.

In 2018, CHBA BC’s Executive Committee applied even more aggressive budgeting for revenues, yet we continue to see large surpluses driven primarily from education. While there is no immediate concern that these revenue streams will decrease in the short-term, Neil and team are very aware that the association must still work within its means. Continuing to reserve sizable surpluses will safeguard CHBA BC against unexpected headwinds.

Our auditors, Wolrige Mahon Collins Barrow LLP, have provided their review of the 2018 financial statements and I am happy to report the review is clean. Our auditors continued to provide strategic advice to ensure that CHBA BC is protected financially for the foreseeable future.

2018 Priorities and Highlights:

- Membership growth, anchored by key regions in the Interior, Vancouver Island and Vancouver
- Strong results from Education, Energy Programs and Events (Builders’ Super Week and the ever-popular Georgie Awards)
- Governmental Relations Momentum fueled by the “Stop the Speculation Tax” Campaign and CHBA BC Day at the Legislature
- Staff Growth & Expansion of Training Programs

“CHBA BC is proud to redistribute $406,200 in revenue sharing, from CPD training, to its member locals.”

The Board remains committed to providing benefits to members as a result of accumulated surplus funds. This topic is continually monitored and under examination at Executive Board meetings and has spawned a Special Funding Program that member locals can access by application and based on annual budget availability. Further to this, CHBA BC is proud to redistribute $406,200 in revenue sharing, from CPD training, to its member locals.

I am confident that the association’s financial outlook remains very positive. I would like to thank my fellow board members for their strategic thinking over financial issues. I would also like to thank the CHBA BC office team for their ongoing support and dedication to the association. Our outlook for 2019 continues to be encouraging and we are well positioned to deliver value to our more than 2,000 members all across British Columbia.

CHBA 75th National Conference and Pre-Conference Regional Education Program

The CHBA National Pre-Conference Committee and Council meetings (March 19 to 21) were followed by the main Conference (March 21-23), featuring dynamic business sessions, great social events and valuable networking opportunities. Several members from across B.C. participated in the conference and took advantage of the location in Victoria.

CHBA BC hosted a concurrent pre-conference Regional Education Program on March 19 and 20 with CHBA Vancouver Island. This was beneficial to both conference attendees coming from out of town and local Vancouver Island builders. CHBA BC also held a “BC Night” reception on March 19 to open the conference and welcome everyone to Victoria.

We were pleased to have Victoria-Swan Lake MLA and Minister of Education Rob Fleming join us to provide greetings that evening.

SkillsBC Booth

With the shortage of skilled trades facing our industry, CHBA is actively engaged in promoting careers in residential construction at all levels of the association.

This year, CHBA BC participated as a booth exhibitor with CHBA Fraser Valley at the SkillsBC competition on April 18, 2018, in Abbotsford. This event brings together B.C. youth to compete in various trade and technology competitions, and promotes careers in the skilled trades.

In 2018, CHBA National also signed an official partnership with SkillsCanada, the national branch of the organization, that will lead to further collaboration on promoting the skilled trades in the coming years.

Speculation and Vacancy Tax Campaign

The Speculation and Vacancy Tax Act was announced at the B.C. Budget in February and officially introduced in October 2018. A notable change from the initial announcement was the introduction of several exemptions for development land - a key ask of CHBA BC throughout 2018 in several meetings and policy submissions with the Ministry of Finance. CHBA BC is pleased to see and applauds that the government has recognized the need to create this exemption based on its direct impacts on housing affordability.

For the policy in general, CHBA BC produced an education campaign for consumers to provide information on the speculation tax legislation and our serious concerns. Some of the highlights of the September and October 2018 campaign include: media articles and op-eds, Facebook Ads that reached over 400,000 people with over 800 comments, almost 500 petition sign-ups on the stopthetax.ca website, and 500 postcards distributed at local events.

BC Legislature Day in Victoria

From November 5-8, 2018, 30 delegates from all nine of CHBA BC’s local associations came together for our first Legislature Day in Victoria. This event was about demonstrating to MLAs the industry expertise our members can provide on housing policy. After a productive training day on November 6, members were prepared to have collaborative discussions in their MLA meetings on November 7.

CHBA BC delegates held 20 scheduled meetings with 45 MLAs from all three parties, including many Cabinet Ministers, and participated in a packed evening reception at the Hotel Grand Pacific on November 7. Minister of Housing Selina Robinson, MLA Sam Sullivan, and MLA Adam Olsen (B.C. Green party) all provided greetings to the guests, which included over 50 MLAs.

After a busy day of meetings and the reception, our members gathered on November 8 to share lessons learned and how we can build on the momentum going forward. We are pleased that so many MLAs took the time to meet with us and it demonstrates that our professional member perspectives on housing affordability are valued and appreciated. In fact, many MLAs indicated they would like to see CHBA BC repeat this and come back—a great sign that the event was a success.

LOOKING AHEAD TO 2019

GVHBA to HAVAN

In October 2018, as per the CHBA BC By-laws, the CHBA BC Board of Directors officially approved a new name for Greater Vancouver Home Builders’ Association to become Homebuilders Association Vancouver (HAVAN). This name change occurred on January 31, 2019.

Renovation Fundamentals Course

We developed a new online Renovation Fundamentals course throughout 2018, which represents several “firsts” for CHBA BC Education. It’s the first online-only course, the first course to incorporate video-based learning, and the first course intentionally designed to be appropriate for delivery across Canada. This course will launch in 2019.

CHBA BC would like to thank BC Housing for its generous support of our programs throughout the year.
